This book is devoted to the development of a wide range of Java applications using the Eclipse 4 IDEs. The book examines the basics of working in the Eclipse IDE, including the use of debugging tools, testing, and code refactoring.

Team development, internationalization and localization of applications, the creation of a graphical user interface based on the SWT and JFace libraries are covered.

You learn the features of developing RCP and Android applications, as well as Web and Ajax applications based on the Eclipse projects RAP, GWT, Riena, SCA, Scout, WTP, DTP, BIRT, and others.

The book is accompanied by a large number of examples with detailed analysis of source codes.
